Outcome Statement:

This course provides students with an opportunity to develop critical awareness and skills in social practice that will enhance social justice and social change. It involves interaction with advanced practitioners from the field of Social Practice. Students have the opportunity to reflect on the experience of these practitioners and through collaboration develop strategies to develop their own models of Te Tiriti based and socially just practice.

Learning Outcomes:

On successful completion of this course students will be able to:

1. Critically reflect on the intersection of personal history and values, with the values of social work and community development
2. Critically analyse the concept of social justice as a focus in social practice.
3. Articulate a framework for their own future practice, based on Te Tiriti o Waitangi and values of social justice.

Learning and Teaching:

Classes are interactive with adult learning principles to the fore. There is a mixture of some theoretical focus, presentations by visiting practitioners, work in small groups and whole class reflection.

Topics may include:

Critical theory, Kaupapa Māori theory and research, power relations, culture, ethnicity, gender, Te Tiriti based practice, social justice and social change.
